The Evolutions in New York Bay in Monor of Columbus Week Exceeds

Anything the World Has Ever teen

The Miantonoman Greets Them.

New York, Oct. 12.-New York commerce Tuesday paid tribute to the mem-ory of Columbus. The yest business of the second seaport of the world was practically suspended, and more than 300 steamers and tugboats, the smallest of them larger than the 75-ton "Santa Maria," the 50-ton "Pinta" or the 40-ton "Nina" in which the great discoverer and his companions made their adventurous voyage, dropped their ordinary vocations and formed in majestic holiday parade to do him honor.

If New York has registered a silent vow to show the world what it could have done if the World's Columbian fair had been permitted to be held here-as the extraordinary enthusiasm and enorgy which all classes of the community have thrown into this week's Columbian celebration suggests-New York thoroughly succeeded in carrying out its

With every favoring condition of skies and weather, with the crisp, clear air of the early fall bringing out in sharp outline every object on dancing waters and along the shores of New York's matchless bay and harbor, the naval pageant of to-day was a spectacle to be once seen and always remembered. Not even the famous roadstead of spithead—England's great naval reviewing ground—with all its surrounding panorams of beautiful scenery, could sur-

From the green heights of Ft. Wadsworth, on the western shore, at the entrance to the Narrows, eastward to the shbals of Rockaway and the sandy reaches of the Hook, southward to the Highlands of the Navesink, and northward to the dim blue outlines of the Palisades and the grassy slopes of Riverside, afar up the Hudson, the scene was one of marvelous life and beauty.

And all New York was there to see it. Every one of the 250 steamers, tugs and yachts forming the escorting fleet, as well as each of the vessels composing the naval militia, was crowded with guests. New York became for the nonce a city on the sea. All the points of view in the harbor and along the bay, Liberty Island, Staten Island, Governon's Island, the upper stories and roofs of all the great buildings in the city, and both shores of the Hudson were thronged with spectators.

Shortly after 10 a. m. the steam-tug Howard Carroll left the barge office, having on board the committee on nava parade and their distinguished guests. The parade centered and revolved about the foreign naval visitors, the war-ships of France, Italy and Spain. These vessels were the Arethusa, the flag-ship of the French Atlantic squadron, which by virtue of its rank led the way; the Hussard, another French gunboat; the Italian cruiser Giovanni Bausan and the Spanish man-of-war Infanta Isabel.

None of them is especially a specimen of the modern improved war ship. Their presence was a matter of sentiment; not a display of naval force. The Arethusa is a full rigged iron frigate, unarmored, of about 8,400 tons, carrying twenty-four guns. She has one smoke stack, has a black hull, standing high out of the water, and somewhat resembles the old United States steamer Minnesota. The Arethusa bears the flag of Rear Admiral Delebrune. The Hussard is a smaller boat, bark rigged, and of the class known as a dispatch boat. She has a white hull and graceful lines, and carries four large guns and six revolving guns.

The Bausan is a twin-screw armored ateam steel cruiser, with gun turrets fore and aft, lying low in the water, and bearing some resemblance to the Boston, only that her hull is painted a dark color, and not white. The Spanish man-of-war Infanta Isabel is a barlerigged steel vessel, painted white, and carries her four heavy guns something like the Chicago

Waiting in attendance on the foreign visitors at the reception point, prepared to escort them up the river, were the United States squadron, commanded by Commodore Erben, U. S. N., consisting of the flag ship Philadelphia, the armored cruiser Miantonomab, the dispatch boats Atlanta and Dolphin, the dynamite gunboat Vesuvius, the const survey steamer Blake, the revenue cutters Grant and Dexter, and the lighthouse steamer Armenia, together with the torpedo boat Cushing, assigned for the use of the director of the parade, S. Nicholson Kane.

Against Leing Buried.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 12 .- Much excitement was caused at the village of Cranesville, Tenn., over the peculiar death of A. D. Smith, a prominent citizen. Last Monday he apparently died, and was shrouded. Tuesday, while his funeral services were being conducted, a noise in the coffin was heard. The cover, which was not fastened securely, was burst open and Smith sat upright in the coffin. He was taken home to bed, and, after several hours, seemed to have recovered from the strange experience, when he declared that he had visited Heaven, where he saw many white spirits, and some of them he recognized as friends he had known on earth. They shook their heads when questioned, pointing to a large book lying open. He looked and saw written the names of himself and living children, though his name, he said, was partially erased. He told other wondrous stories of his strange experiences, and their recital drew scores of curious people to his home. Smith lived on in apparently good health until a night or two ago, when suddenly he was taken worse and cried out: "I see them," and fell back

Robert Bonner's Offer. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.-Robert Bonner, in a letter to the New York Times, referring to a prediction made a year age in a letter to Gen. Striking Resolutions Adopted by the Rock Biver Conference. STERLING, Ill., Oct. 12.-Roman Catholicism in connection with the public schools received a vigorous scaring at the hands of the Methodist ministers in session here at the Rock river conference, which includes Chicago. The subject came up in the form of a report from the committee on education, which was adopted as follows: "The American public schools are in danger. The danger is occasioned by the very thing that Washington said would not be tolerated-foreign interference. Against this interference we emphatically protest. Firmly believing that the pope and the bishops are criminals against some of the best things in human life, we stoutly affirm that the Roman policy in America should be put in quarantine. Compulsory education is a civil necessity in of justice and Senor Anchrina as minthis country.
